Meestelaulud - Men's Songs

Veljo Tormis
(b. 1930)

I. Meeste laul – Men's Song

We are men like wild bulls, Aru Jaan's grey steers, bellowing we go to the woods, trampling to the oak grove. Let them come, the thousand men of Tuudi, another hundred from Sauga parish, we shall scatter them to the winds and take their measure by steelyard. We shall heat up the cold village saunas, heal sickly maidens, put cupping glasses on Kaie, and on fallen Maie. We do not fear drowning nor falling into a well, headlong we plunge into a creek, rush into a bear's lair.

II. Ehalkäimise-laul – Bundling Song

It bores me to be sleeping along in this cold barn. Should I be going to drop in at Viiu's? (Should I start) howling at the door, asking to be let in? But fear has taken hold of me, for how will I pass through the village? All the dogs have been beaten and very well trained – they will rush at me and take a bit at my thigh. What else can I do but sleep in a cold barn?

III. Kosjalaul – Betrothal Visit Song

Now I've left behind all worries, settled my courtship. Bottles weren't scarce, plenty had been brought home. I found a number in a closet, sundry had been held in them – birch tar and lamp oil, which you could tell by the smell. Water I measured by the pail, so that the spirits would not be strong. (Offer your bride strong spirits, she will learn to drink and booze.) Then I lit my pipe, harnessed my sorrel stallion to the sleigh. Let the village women wonder, for today I am going to propose. Then merrily I rode under Mari's dad's window. Syrup they brought me plenty, syrup and incense, and a whole tray of eggs: "Eat them all up, son-in-law." (If I eat and get fatter, I'll look like a squire.) Let's now waste no more time, I'll praise myself against my father-in-law. "Give me your Mari – I have a pocket watch and an umbrella, weighty notes I carry in my pocket, two-storied houses in my pouch." Mari heard me say, jumped onto my sleigh – Oh my, how she hugged me! What shall I bet on that soon my wedding day comes?

Wesley Clerge, Peter Guidash and Kevin Larsen, Soloists

IV. Viinalaul – Drinking Song

When I left the tavern, I saw a lot of fun – the road went slantwise, the juniper had grown slantwise, the willow seemed slantwise, the fence had long been slantwise. All of the Russian rule was slantwise, the cabbage patch upside down. Oh, you bitter spirits, you sweet drink, somersaulting you go down the throat, sprightly to the stomach. When I left the tavern I saw a lot of fun – Well, the road went slantwise, the house stood slantwise in the forest, the bed slantwise by the wall, and old maid slantwise in the bed. All of the Russian rule was slantwise, the cabbage patch upside down.

V. Türgi sõja laul – Song of the Turkish War

One, two, three – and thrash! Twenty years I served, was a private, shot lead out of my gun straight at the Turks' eyes, oh I did, too. Sleighed I ten Turks advancing in the battle, then was hit myself at the rattle of the Plevna battle. Wounded I was found there and cured in hospital. Then they gave me a white ticket and sent me back home. There I got a golden medal, and a cross –that's good, not bad, for I made some money out of it.

Daemon Irrepit Callidus (2001)

György Orbán
(b. 1947)

The Demon sneaks expertly, tempting the honorable heart; He sets forth trickery amidst praise, song and dance. However amiably the Demon acts, it is still worth less than the heart of Jesus. The Flesh is tempted by sensuality; gluttony clings to our senses. It overgrows, it encroaches, it stretches. However appealing the Flesh is, it is still worth less than the heart of Jesus. Though the Universe may confer thousands upon thousands of praises, they neither fulfill nor put out the desire of the heart. However appealing the whole Universe is, it is still worth less than the heart of Jesus.
