

The Assignment:

We're going to begin learning about a new culture, the Ju/'hoansi, in ANTH 107 World Cultures and you want to do a little background research on them so you can better understand the book and make interesting and intelligent comments in class. So, you head to the library to find out more about them ... but how exactly do you go about doing such research?

Question 1:

The best type of source for getting general background information or overviews is _____

Name one such source useful for this assignment: _____

Go there, read up on the Ju/'hoansi and briefly summarize what you learned. Include a list of alternate names for this group.

Question 2:

What kinds of sources would be the best sources of information about research that's been done on the Ju/'hoansi?

Circle one:

books

journals

magazines

newspapers

websites

Why?

Go find two good sources in this category:

Name of the search tool: _____

Best search terms: _____ in the _____ field

And/or _____ in the _____ field

And/or _____ in the _____ field

Limiters (date range, language...):

Citation for first source (use APA style)

Citation for second source (use APA style)

Question 3:

What kinds of sources would be the best sources of information about what's currently going on with the Ju/'hoansi?

Circle one:

books

journals

magazines

newspapers

websites

Why?

Go find two good sources in this category:

Name of the search tool: _____

Best search terms: _____ in the _____ field

And/or _____ in the _____ field

And/or _____ in the _____ field

Limiters (date range, language...):

Citation for first source (use APA style)

Citation for second source (use APA style)

Question 4:

For the sources you identify in (2) and (3), which would be the best to use in a paper for class? Why?

Question 5:

If you were going to use these sources in a paper, you would need to cite them in both the text and in the References section. Above you have cited them for the references section. How would you cite them in the text?